

Team Spirit & Leadership

Presented by Bob Czimbal

Teamwork is a learned skill. Regular practice is required to keep this skill in shape. Quality teams produce quality products and services. That is the bottom line.

Teamwork is empowering. In effective teams, each member assumes responsibility for the desired result. Being a team player requires flexibility, such as the ability to follow directions or take a leadership role. Teamwork builds cooperation and self-confidence. Teamwork gets the job done.

All change is stressful. Each one of us has some resistance to change. What would be a struggle for one person can be fun for a team. A smooth running team believes they can do anything. United in one effort, two people can do the work of four and four of sixteen.

Team Challenges

Challenging experiences are structured which require team effort to overcome obstacles. Each person gains insights into how they function in a group and respond to challenges. Each challenge activity is followed by a discussion on how to bring these skills back to work. The lessons learned in these action packed experiences will be remembered for a lifetime. Team members consistently report feeling that they have gained useful experience on how to better work with coworkers.

One hour to one day custom workshops are available. No previous experience or special physical abilities are needed. Appropriate for all ages. Great for management and staff training's. Bring a spirit of adventure.
